Knight beat

An eight-fifteen bell Sounds through corridors As students accept A challenge of learning. The silent movement Of a microscope Being focused, The rhythmic chatter Of the typewriter keys, The clatter of dishes Intermingled with voices, The swish of a brush On the easel of an artist— All resound within The walls of AHS. Listen to these sounds for They are the KNIGHT BEAT.

A party slate enables senior Charles Lowery to preview the nominees before a roll call vote is taken.

Knights exercise patriotic responsibilities in the facets of virgorous campaigning as they jump on the bandwagon for president-elect Richard Nixon.

The flag, a symbol of democracy, reminds students of our free election system.

Appealing to teen ideals, Senator Birch Bayh gains the support of AHS students.

'Winn'ing teens back campaign favorites

The "Winn"ing team, seniors Becky Pearce, Emil Molin, Dave Schwantes, Ed Harlan and friend prepare posters for the campaign of senior Craig Winn.

Cheering politicians gain first hand knowledge of the election process in the state of Indiana, as they participate in the mock nominating convention.

The fluctuating rhythm Of an election year Invaded AHS. Campaign slogans Echoed through the halls As teens became Actively involved In the mock election. Political headquarters Became Homes-away-from-home To teen supporters, As the swish of envelopes Being stuffed Sounded in headquarters. Senior elections Opened new channels Into active campaigning, As the steady tempo Of a campaign band Exploded in the halls. Election year '68— A vital part Of the KNIGHT BEAT.

Posters provide part of a successful campaign for senior Craig Winn.

Foreign pupils build world

The school flag becomes an addition to life in the United States for seniors Esther Pomerada of Peru and Wilfred Griekspoor of the Netherlands.

Summer AFS student Karen Wilkes presents a letter from Brazil to Mayor Lugar.

A LANCER "beat" is a part of the curriculum for reporter Wiff Griekspoor.

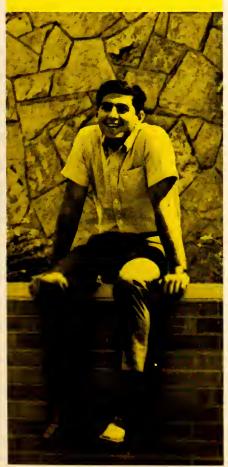

During intermission ceremonies at the American Field Service dance, "Kaleidoscope of Nations," foreign students Esther Pomerada and Knut Grazei receive gifts from AFS.

friendships

A foreign flavor
Added a different tone
To the montage
Of students.
An unfamiliar teen Entered Arlington High,
Adding a new voice
To those sounding
In the halls.
Customs, ways of life
Broadened the outlook
Of teens
As the KNIGHT BEAT

All over the world.

A change of pace characterizes life for Turkish exchange student Evren Elmali.

Hopeful AFS summer program participants, Chris Halter and Russ Palma, receive letters of acceptance from Mrs. Audra Bailey (STANDING) and Mrs. Betty Hungerford (SEATED).

Barefoot, "Maki" Ashwell sings "My Bonnie" in the talent show production.

The "exact fare" requirement makes dimes and nickels a necessity for Dave Moody.

Flood, flame, 'face' lifting

"Stadium Builder" collection cartons aid homerooms in the collection of funds, as parents and students alike join forces in an effort to burn the mortgage.

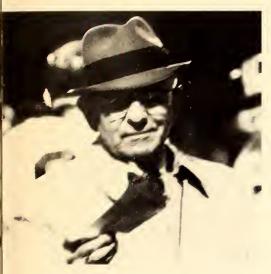

The finished football stadium provides a true "home" for the Golden Knights.

A "reflecting pool" proves to be a messy job for workmen, as flood waters rise.

exemplify year of unexpected 'happenings'

The mortgage goes "up in flames" climaxing a four year effort of teens.

Missing panels create problems for workmen performing "face" lifting operations.

A massive structure Seating cheering teens Became truly complete, Climaxing A four year campaign Of jingling coins And a chili supper. A season's final game And a winter's first snow Set the tone As the mortgage "Went up in flames." Rushing waters And the whoosh of a pump Added a different tempo To the music corridor As a fire main broke Providing a "wading pool" For orchestra students. The face of the school Changed its appearance As the steady pounding Of a repairman's hammer Sounded From the outer wall. The sounds of 1969. Constantly changing, Characterized The unexpected, The accomplishments That made up The KNIGHT BEAT.

A bursting hoop exemplifies a spirited year of tunnels and traditions.

The rhythm of youth— The tempo of today Echoes within teen-life. It is The endless blare Of a caravan of cars Enroute to an away game, A quiet prayer For strength Before a football game, The methodical turning Of pages As "The Odyssey" is read, The exciting melody Of "The Rain In Spain" Pulsating from the stage, The silence Of a "quiet day" Initiated To promote spirit. These sounds merge Creating a unified tempo Of student life— The KNIGHT BEAT.

Cockney girl, prof in 'My Fair Lady' fool

"Why can't a woman be more like a man," is the angry plea of Allan (Prof.) Kuhlman.

Cockney boys and a flower cart provide consolation to a dejected Eliza.

The "enchantment" of 27A Wimpole Street inspires junior Dan (Freddy) McDermott to sing "On the Street Where You Live," following a chance encounter with Eliza Doolittle.

high society in musical presentation

In the backstreets of London, at the turn of the century, a common flower girl became a challenge to an aristocratic grammarian, as he ventured to transform a "cabbage leaf" into a high society duchess.

Lerner and Loewe's musical, "My Fair Lady" was presented by music students November 14 and 15 at evening performances.

Assuming the leading roles, seniors Allan Kuhlman and Karen Jessup led parents and students through rigorous voice lessons, the flowing strains of "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face," the "exciting" Ascot Race and the spectacular Embassy Ball.

Supporting roles were portrayed by juniors Dan (Freddy) McDermott and Dan (Alfred P. Doolittle) Lane. Senior Peter Rusthoven played the part of Colonel Pickering.

After a tiring rehearsal, freshman dancer Mickey Drudge prepares to return home.

Contemplating a good life, Karen (Eliza) Jessup sings "Wouldn't It be Loverly."

The flowing strains of "I'm an Ordinary Man" sounds from the darkened orchestra pit, as teen musicians provide music for the actors on the stage.

Frenzied feminine football

The strategy of football is related to the junior team by coach Joe Draughon.

A short time-out aids the senior girls, as they form a huddle to determine plays and quickly repair make-up before the action on the gridiron resumes.

Attempting to defend, rather than tackle her own teammate, senior Patty Witthoft comes to the aid of senior Nancy Scherer in the feminine clash on the gridiron.

Team doctor, Mrs. Mercedes Portilla, aid: Helen Hathaway following a rough play.

card section characterize 'Spirit' of 69

The rip of a hoop, the cheers of Knight pepsters, the rush of teens to the stands, and the silence of a "quiet day" characterized a "spirited" year.

Changing sweaters and cokes for jerseys and gatorade, upperclass girls clashed on the gridiron in a contest of feminine endurance which ended in a 20—8 victory for the senior girls.

Halftime was highlighted by an impromptu presentation of follow-the-leader performed by male cheerleaders.

A "tunnel" of cheering teens stretched from goal post to goal post on an opponent's field as enthusiastic teens demonstrated school spirit.

Following the founding of the Student Council Spirit Committee, teens made hoops for every game, crepe paper shakers, and climaxed the mortgage burning ceremonies with the release of black and gold balloons.

A Knights Klub card section added a finishing touch of teen enthusiasm to the spirit of 1969.

Cheering pepster Meg Woods provides enthusiastic support to Knight players.

Tissue flowers characterize homecoming for seniors Ron Amos and Sandy Bellew.

• Chrysler Award winners Susie Bishoff and Ron Pettigrew eye the plaque that will hold their names. The award is given for com-munity service. • Not only familiar with the past, DAR re-cipient Barb Hartley reads todays news.

Honors given; Knight Beat molds leaders

of tomorrow

Stepping into '69, students took their places as Knights in a fast paced and searching generation.

Teens who were eager to learn and contribute time and effort towards a goal became active, participating citizens. Knights spread their influence over the city as Paul Troy took the office of mayor for a day. Politics also played a part in the lives of four seniors who attended Girls' and Boys' State. Six students proved their scholastic prowess in becoming National Merit Semi-Finalists, and Dave Milam, Bausch-Lomb winner, gained his prize for scientific skill.

Providing service and good citizenship to school and community earned honors for seniors Barb Hartley, Susie Bishoff, and Ron Pettigrew.

Robyn reigns as Knights 'roast' Redskins

The aroma of hot chili, the last minute cries of "the chicken wire will not stand up," and the silent anticipation of the crowd just before the queen was announced characterized the 1969 Homecoming festivities.

Days of kleenex flower making in homeroom, combined with nights of float construction, gave way to tired students and prizewinning floats.

Knights and their parents ate chili at a pregame dinner, and aided in the campaign to burn the mortgage.

The half-time parade of floats and queen candidates ended in the crowning of senior Robyn Chamness as the 1968 Homecoming Queen.

An Arlington first, a dance in the gym, highlighted the evening as teens danced in their stocking feet—a true sock-hop.

The school's first sock-hop on the gym floor concludes the evening's excitement.

Battling the cold weather and the Manual Redskins, a Knight gridiron man surveys the action on the field and contemplates the plays in his mind.

Royalty is . . . Senior Robyn Chamness reigns over 1969 Homecoming festivities.

Coach Bill Kuntz and senior Veo McGee plot against the Manual Redskins.

"A Knight on the reservation" . . . In a successful effort to prove that hard work pays off and that freshmen aren't really as helpless as upperclassmen may think, the members of freshman homeroom 340 take their first place float around the track.

Elite Knights chosen for royal positions

Singing the pep song as the crowd cheered, Pat Stutsman reigned as Jamboree Queen.
Knight and Gale, Bob Meara and Sue Murphy, were crowned at intermission of the annual "Knight Train to Talent."

Enjoying the sparkling yuletide atmosphere of this year's Christmas dance, "Belles and Beaux," are senior king and queen Paul Troy and Anitra Clark.

to represent teen ideals

There was a sudden hush—a very heavy silence. Then her name was announced, and for one girl, that night will never be forgotten. Her smile radiated happiness through the crowd's applause. She had just been chosen one of Arlington's elite—a queen by her classmates.

The beat of beauty started with Jamboree Queen Pat Stutsman, who cheered through the pre-season football game.

Kings gained accolades in three activities—Knight and Gale at the Talent Show, King and Queen of the NHS "Belles and Beauxs," and Cy and Cindy for the Turnabout. The single crown Robyn Chamness won as Homecoming Queen became a double honor when she was voted "Cindy."

The Military Ball and Junior Promended the year's contests but not Knight beauty.

Royalty reigns, as junior Tom Meara and senior Robyn Chamness become Cy and Cindy at the Student Council's annual Tournabout Dance, "A Knight to Remember."

Spurlock, Jan Byers, Karen Wilkes, and Darla Shadrick vied for the queen's title of the gala event.

Flashing strobe lights, pounding drumbeat

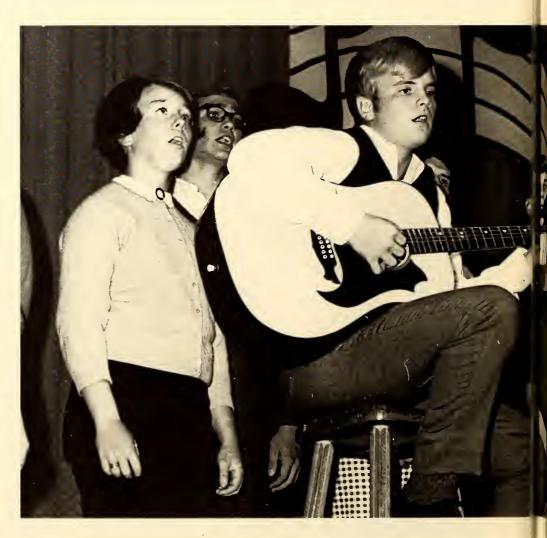

"Back Up the Train," is pantomined by senior Alonzo Watford in the talent show.

A sign-up sheet marks the beginning of the talent show as junior Andy McDaniels and seniors Mona Stott and Shiela Segrest sign up their act, "The Golden Souls."

sets rhythm of 'soul train'

The pounding beat of a drum, the colored flashes of a strobe light, and the subtle rhythm of a poem set the tempo as the curtain rose on the 1968 Knight Train to Talent.

Weeks of preparation, under the direction of coordinators Anitra Clark and Beckie Bultman, led to a show filled with soul, folk, jazz, and even a little advice on how to handle Little Bo Peep's sheep.

The crowning of seniors Bob Meara and Sue Murphy as Knight 'n Gale, Arlington's typical boy and girl, sparked intermission activities, while senior girls looked toward the future, ending the "Soul Train '68" performance on a sentimental note.

Try-outs mean extra duties for Anitra Clark and Beckie Bultman.

A look into the future is presented to all seniors by Carol McCormick.

The Tijuana Brass song, "Whipped Cream," provides background music for a jazz routine, danced by senior Cathy McFarland. Cathy is a veteran talent show dancer.

Pursuit of love, confused identity enliven

senior play 'Tom Jones'

Comedy set the mood for the senior production of "Tom Jones," as approximately 50 class members relived the past with scenes ranging from "murder" to marriage.

The story of a young Englishman and his pursuit of his true love, the play depicted Jim Lane in the title role with Cathy McFarland as Sophia Western. Blifil, the villain of the plot, was brought to life by Pete Rusthoven, while Allan Kuhlman portrayed Tom's "generous" uncle, Squire Allworthy.

Newcomers to the stage, as well as "old pros," kept the audience laughing as they presented an abundance of coincidences and an appearance of the "Black Shadow" demanding "Your money or your life!"

Filling behind-the-scenes roles, seniors also handled sets, costumes, makeup, and ticket sales.

•"Mourning" the squire's illness, the servants await news of the will (above).

• A last minute check of lines and entrances is made by Russ Kennedy, Michelle Vaughan, and Nancy Atkinson before the play.

- •Teasing Tom (left), Sophia thanks him for saving her life.

Minds whirl, Create and grow In the academic world Of Arlington High. In the chemistry lab, Bubbling liquids Unlock the world Of crystal formation. Pounding hearts Accompany heavy breathing As sit-ups are executed. Piano strings vibrate As a music theory student Composes a "symphony." Rifles crack As ROTC cadets Perfect their skills. The swish of pages Sounds As the War of 1812 Comes alive, Making the academic tempo An intricate part Of the KNIGHT BEAT.

'Now generation' returns to classical era

Voicing individual views, freshman English pupils carry on a panel discussion. Rick Heckman directs controversial questions at peers.

Mr. James Urbain illustrates difficulties in word communication through abstract art.

Reading lab, a nine week counterpart of Orientation, aids freshman Lorre Lisa Stewart in perfection of quick and accurate reading. This course benefits all subjects.

for past art, investigates humanities

From Shakespeare to Dickens, from vocabulary words to compound-complex sentences, from term papers to epic poems, English students studied basic and advanced application of their language.

New textbooks provided explorations into the past through the classics and in depth studies of life through the humanities.

In addition to routine grammar and literature courses, speech, drama, publications, and library experience students delved into specialized areas. Preparing pupils for possible future vocations, the assignments taught correct techniques in public speaking, acting, and journalistic writing.

Applying the knowledge gained in introductory courses, active students accepted responsibilities with speech and debate teams and on newspaper and yearbook staffs.

Researching prepares sophomores Bruce Tovsky and Mark Bishop for vocational papers.

"The rain in Spain" . . . Karen "Eliza" Jessup practices public speaking enunciation.

Striving to achieve perfection in a speech senior Mark Nelson gathers and analyzes his information. Presenting his speech, he knows that enthusiasm is essential.

Junior mathematicians strive for accuracy;

Department head Owen Fair talks with a parent and explains a geometry assignment.

anticipate computer difficulties

Future accountants, engineers, and architects studied the basic laws necessary in the quick tempo of the business world.

While beginning mathematicians tackled lateral equations, geometry and advanced algebra students proved congruences and worked with log charts.

With the complications of the computer era, calculus students disciplined themselves for complete accuracy in detailed limitation and permutation problems.

Adoption of new texts for beginning and advanced students aided comprehension while intermediate mathematicians still benefited from last year's books.

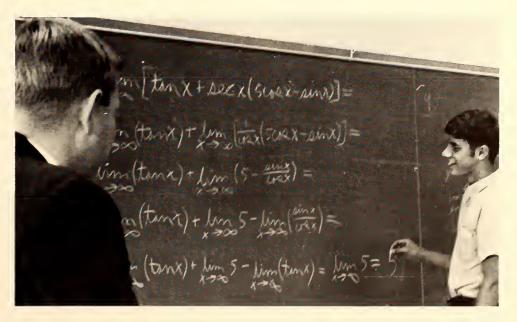

Future plans include a computer programming course.

With the aid of an overhead projector, algebra teacher William Fisher explains formulas and answers questions in an effort to better students' understanding.

The tangent of X plus the secant of X... senior Bob Mott "evaluates a limit" as calculus teacher Henry Volk instructs him in the theories of the course.

Future Einsteins analyze basic concepts;

Senior Jim Foley ignites a bunsen burner warming his crucible in preparation for his crystalization experiment in physical science class.

investigate life's secret

From the plutonium atom to the ameba, future scientists learned the value of practical application of acquired knowledge.

Biology students discovered the wonders of life as they observed organisms through microscopes and dissected specimens.

Advanced classes specialized in physiology and microbiology.

Growing crystals and titrating liquids provided part of the chemistry student's curriculum. Basic concepts and the laws of nature were tackled by science and physics classes.

Delving into the unknown realms, astronomy students identified constellations.

Sophomore Kitty Unthank cringes at her task of dissecting (left). With the proper equipment, students identify organs of the frog. (top). Having accomplished the assignment, pupils wash hands and tools (bottom).

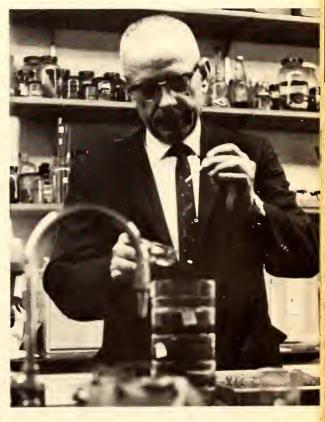

The science museum increased its exhibits and its usefulness. English classes became acquainted with the museum's facilities with the help of physics teacher Eddie Foster, who explains the principles of simple machines.

In a world of their own, seniors Candy Belden and David Milam overlook an Indianapolis evening sky brightened with various constellations in the planetarium.

Science department head Merle Wimmer explores the microscopic world of ferns with available laboratory equipment.

World affairs, elections, current events

With unloaded camera, tricky Alma Irving sneaks into opponent's convention.

Electioneering for "Feds" and "Nats," Mrs. Margaret Janert takes an active part in the mock elections to assure efficient government in the state of Arlington.

Crayon in hand, cadet teacher Ann Waller helps a first grade student associate colors with names as she prepares for a career in elementary teaching.

With respect, juniors Chris Horton and Barbara Saillant recall the world wars.

prompt pupils to historical interpretation

"My candidate will beat yours." Voting Americans cast their ballots for new political leaders on November 5. Seniors in the State of Arlington likewise voted for their favorite candidate. With a "topnotch" theme song, Nationalist "Real (Rob) McCoy" captured Arlington's governorship while Nixon was the "won" for national scales.

Dividing an enrollment of 1,950 pupils, 14 teachers educated their students in challenging courses ranging from newly added sociology and anthropology to basic United States History and Government. Freshmen began their study of history with a wide range of information in World History, while upperclassmen probed fine details in Economics and Psychology classes.

With the job of informing tomorrow's voters of domestic and foreign policies, history department head, John Morris, gathers extra resources for his classes.

Mind over matter . . . seniors Debbie Wiersma and LaDonna Lucas find it impossible to search another's mind as they explore uselessly

Kevin Kestner's outer cranium. Psychology students study human behavior and the complexities of the mind.

Boys, girls build body stamina, strength,

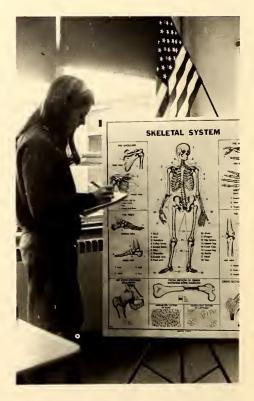

Junior Cathy Clark demonstrates a very difficult maneuver on the uneven bars as she does a perfect handstand on the bars. Cathy is a member of the Gymnastic team.

train minds for maturity

Mentally alert, physically active students emerged from Driver's Ed. ready to watch out for the other guy in defensive driving, and to watch for their own well-being through Health.

Beginning gym classes provided a rigid schedule of exercising, running, tumbling, and participating in volleyball and kickball games. Difficult routines on the parallel and uneven bars, on the horse, and on the balance beam prepared girls in advanced classes for the Gymnastics Team. Gymnasts competed with other Arlingtonites in tryouts for intramural contests.

A combination of courses in the Physical Ed. Department helped to develop stronger, well-coordinated bodies.

Naming the basic bones in the human body is the task assigned to junior Bobbie Vansickle.

A variety of activities is offered for Physical Education students. Volleyball games, wrestling holds, and tumbling routines keep boys in good condition.

With court in session, the judge and sheriff discuss criminal offenses, penalties, and sentences. They acquaint sophomore Linda Milam with court procedure. Each Driver Education student is expected to attend one traffic court session.

Military minded boys, girls show respect

Sergeant Pennington confers with one of the "Big Brass" during the inspection of Arlington ROTC troops. He and principal Ralph Clevenger hosted the delegation.

for country, serve school

As each boy individually strove to meet the qualifications of "cadet of the month," 180 ROTC marchers stepped to a first place rating in county-wide competition of Veterans' Day.

Under the direction of Sergeants William Pennington and Thomas Blackburn, the school's first formal rifle team spent hours perfecting group precision and personal accuracy. The boys drilled with 22 caliber rifles furnished by the army.

Priding themselves as the city's only "mini-drill team," the six shortest ROTC'ers proved that size wasn't everything when it came to military skill.

Dave Huffman and Earl Sandefur learn our military past at the World War Memorial.

Joseph Mohammed practices firing on the new range beneath the stadium.

ROTC sponsor Karen Wilkes checks to make sure Michelle Vaughan's uniform is "letter perfect" as the other sponsors stand ready at the officers' inspection.

"Hup, two, three" counts Frank Wilmoth as he concentrates on keeping step.

Principals and sponsors from various schools salute the color guard as they lead Arlington's ROTC units past the reviewing stand in the Veterans' Parade.

Learning their language, students prepare

Experience is the best teacher . . . freshman Steve Auch studies vigorously his German assignment through reading, thinking, and reciting conjugations and declensions. This basic practice is followed by all beginning foreign language students.

for peace, united world

Outstanding linguists, surpassing classroom standards, participated in the I.U. Foreign Language Program. For six weeks, winning students enjoyed all the comforts of home with a "foreign flair" in the countries of their respective languages.

A miniature "U-Knighted" Nations was formed as teen good-will ambassadors of Paraguay, Turkey, the Netherlands, Germany, and Brazil exchanged ideas with Arlington pupils.

Academically minded Arlingtonites broadened their cultural horizons as they explored the specifics of Latin, French, Spanish, and German languages this year.

Poly-linguist, William Fishback, heading the Foreign Language Department, prepares an oral assignment.

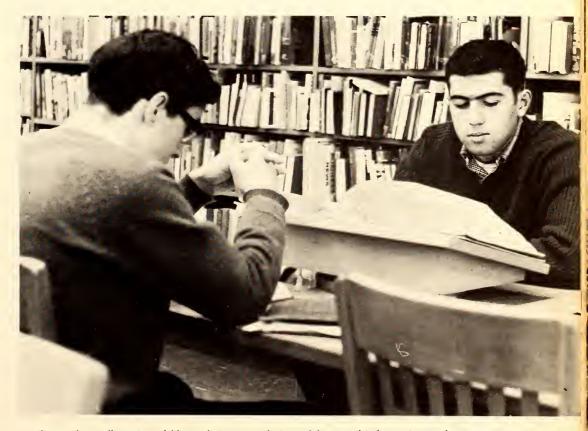

The vibrance of the Spanish language sparks Miss Ferne Gurvitz, a new faculty member to instill a desire for learning in her beginning students.

With rapt determination, Susanna DeMougin applies her skill to learn a new language.

Mr. Feldman shares a moment of humor with his Derivitives class.

Facilities of a well equipped library bring a profusion of facts and information to foreign students Wilfred Griekspoor and Evren Elmali who are studying the English language.

Musicians set beat on field, in concert;

perfect skills in classroom

The underlying cadence of drums set the beat in the music department as students expressed themselves through melodies, lyrics, and arrangements.

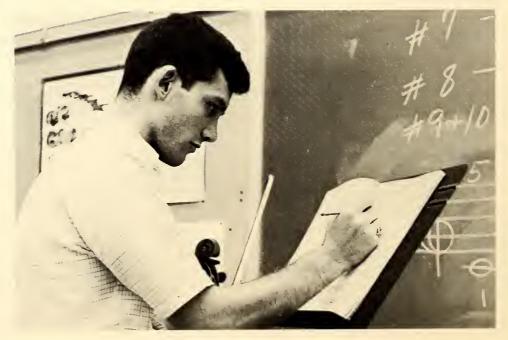

Over 800 students participated in music classes that ranged from beginning band to Arlingtones. Glee clubs developed clear tones, breathing control, and enunciation basics. Concert Choir and Trebleaires enlightened the school and community with their performances.

The solo and ensemble contest inspired students to perfect compositions and perform before a judge for a rating. Concerts, programs, and benefits highlighted the year's activities as teen-musicians exhibited talents.

High-stepping marching band members practice for a half-time show.

Mark Hoecker and Chris Halter rehearse for string ensemble headed by Miss Smith.

Musically inclined senior Ron Pettigrew marks the scores on his music and studies in preparation for his role as Concert Master of the orchestra.

The Arlingtones, consisting of 16 advanced vocalists, perform for school functions throughout the year. They add entertainment for special community activities also. Having mastered the special effects, this group participates in other music courses.

Save that score . . . musicians became waders when broken water pipes flooded the area.

Keeping in time with marching band leader Gerry Knipfel's direction, the band runs through its halftime numbers before pre-game ceremonies.

Clicking typewriters, compiling statistics

Leading her class in discussion, senior Jenny Holly compares the problems, conflicts, rewards, and satisfactions which she is going through in the new Cooperative Education program. This program is designed to acquaint girls directly with the business world.

Explanations from department head, Margaret Rowe help Debbie Linton understand methods.

sound out big business occupations

The staccato of electric type-writers, the drone of new fluid and stencil duplicators: automation arrived in the business department.

The rustling pages of a ledger, the shuffling of file cards: the mechanism of filing and bookkeeping pulsated deep into wondering minds.

The whirring of a key punch machine, the rustle of magnetic tape: a medley of IBM computer talk and programming surged through data processing classes.

The flow of scrawling pens, the hush of busy minds: accelerated business classes resounded with opportunities.

The vibration of helping hands, the cadence of learning minds: introducing pupils to the bustling world of Cooperative Education Program provided jobs.

Utilizing the stencil duplicator, senior Patty Shelton knows working carefully with the machine insures efficient performance from the duplicator.

Typewriting skills are improved in class, and application of these skills are practiced as students learn how valuable typing can be in other subject assignments.

Seniors Sandy Dotts and Anita Lawrence clean typewriters for good conditioning.

Vocational experience, technical skills

Required safety glasses protect sophomore Wallace Parham as he developes skill in the art of shaping metals in his chosen field of general metals.

encourage shop career

The pounding rhythm of a printing machine, the steady hum of a wood lathe, the insect-like buzz of a power saw emerged from the industrial arts wing as experienced teens specialized in shop courses.

Under the direction of department head Victor Graves, industrial arts students learned the basics of shop procedure.

Beginning students tackled the fundamentals of energy sources in power mechanics and electronics. Hands became adept at presenting plans for future building in drawing classes, while individual students utilized knowledge gained in the classroom for projects in woodworking.

Finishing off rough edges with sand paper gives wood a "professional shine".

Armed with ruler and pen and concentrating on precision, Stanley Mikosz surveys closely his six week's project which he is working on in graphic arts class.

The architecture of tomorrow is designed today in mechanical drawing and drafting classes. Junior Russ Palma draws in definite lines to create future buildings.

It must be a light, precise touch junior William Cherry finds after experimenting with electrical equipment. Voltage care is vital William learns.

Printing demands extreme accuracy and perfection. Senior Jim Carter sets his type carefully to prevent poor prints.

Girls simplify homemaking procedures,

Home nursing includes the fundamentals of correct bed preparation, and child care. Senior Carol Forbes demonstrates how to make a bed correctly.

techniques for tomorrow

The cadence of thrifty minds and the rhythm of productive hands merged in the Home Economics department as students prepared for the future.

Probing into the facets of homemaking, family living and housingmanagment, courses prepared for future living through practical situations. Child care and home nursing classes enabled girls to plan for home emergencies as well as everyday happenings.

The whir of sewing machines and the clank of pots and pans sounded as teens developed skills in the preparation of meals, as well as of clothes.

The annual style show presented a kaleidoscope of student flair and creativity as girls modeled their own dresses, sports outfits, and formals.

Department head Jean Heaton aids foods class in preparing Thanksgiving dinner.

Pausing for a moment of silent prayer and personal meditation, Home Economics students thank God for the blessings bestowed upon them in America.

Tedious steps such as pinning, cutting, and basting must be taken before material may be sewn on the machine. Susie Wilson marks her darts with tailor tacks and concentration.

After a delicious meal, comes the work— girls wash dishes and clean up.

Modeling a summer casual made in home economics class, senior Becky Chaille makes a last minute check.

While classmates prepare breakfast Debbie Day demonstrates the correct procedure taken to set a table.

Studying nature, future artists contemplate

In the midst of spring, artists are inspired by nature's beauty. Sophomores Diana Manship and Mike Hancock create "masterpieces" aided by the advice of Mrs. Margaret Hindman.

their 'world,', interpret life

The humanities were introduced into the Art Department this year, a special feature to encourage an in-depth study of culture.

Students continued to practice their techniques in painting, drawing, and sculpturing. They exhibited skills by designing props and scenery for stage productions: Talent Show, My Fair Lady, and the senior play. Gifts were designed in Jewelry and Craft Art classes.

Precision strokes, accurate pounding, and detailed incisions paved the road for excellence in quality. The Scholastic Art Contest sparked a desire for advanced and beginning students to perfect projects of their immediate concern.

Mrs. Margaret Hindman chaperoned a group of aspirant artists to Europe last summer to broaden their educations in art.

Art Department head John Simpson perfects his own art work, crafts, paintings, and sculptures during his free periods.

Mixing paint and creating new colors, Senior David Howell designs an abstract painting. He concentrates on techniques necessary to express feeling in his painting.

Adding a foreign accent, advanced artists observe the features of foreign students, Esther Pomaredo and Maki Ashwell. They record their interpretations in portraits. Artists find that each nationality has its own group of outstanding characteristics.

The three-fifteen bell Marks only a beginning For activities— Knight involvement. The Pop's Concert With a guest trombonist, The basketball game Sparked by cheering fans, A lively Spanish tango Presented At a club meeting Exhibit Knights' efforts. The underlying rhythm Of a booming tympani, The shuffling feet As students rise For the pep song, The encouraging applause Of a pleased audience All sound within The involved teen As specialization Is added To the KNIGHT BEAT.

spirit-minded participation

Focusing on human relations, scholarship, and school spirit, the Student Council and the Spirit Committee urged all students to participate in activities of service to their school during the '68-'69 school year.

Student Council president Marc Boucher led the members in projects such as Howdy Week, Club Day, American Education Week, and a spirit display contest, helping the Council to create student involvement.

Spirit reached its peak as Spirit Committee members encouraged all students to back their school in activities and athletic events. A 100-car caravan to the Lawrence and Warren games, tunnels that reached from goalpost to goalpost, and spirited student sections made the year vibrate with student participation and achievement.

Cameras clicked, typewriters chattered, and tape recorders whirred as the ACCOLADE staff worked with pictures, words, and sounds to tell the story of 1969.

With cheers, shouts, music, and balloons, staff members started the yearbook sales campaign by voting on the ACCOLADE at an all-school auditorium, the "1968 Yearbook Nominating Convention." The ACCOLADE won!

An active school year kept the Lancer staff busy as they rushed to provide up-to-date features and editorials of important activities, performances, and news of the year.

Finished Lancers were sent to Knight readers after hours of time and planning had been spent by editor Susie Bischoff and managing editor Phil Gelston. Working with the staff during and after school hours, they proportioned pictures and prepared copy for the printer.

A special holiday issue highlighted the year, as students received candy canes on a green Lancer scented with pine spray.

"With this candle we light the candle of truth." To these words new members became a part of the honorary groups, National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll. Inspiring others with qualities of service, leadership, and character, National Honor Society members contributed to the school an all-school Christmas dance, "Belles and Beaux," featuring a buffet of ham and turkey, and fall and spring tap day programs.

Improving journalistic talents, Quill and Scroll members worked to achieve excellence in newspaper and yearbook publications.

Induction ceremonies and speeches took on new significance to honor members as they strove to attain quality work in their activities, setting worthy examples for a school to follow.

Sleeping late on weekends was a rare enjoyment for fifteen Science Seminar students who attended lectures and demonstrations weekly. The enthusiasts listened to outstanding scientists from colleges, and industries at the I.U. Medical Center for two hours on Saturdays.

Searching for quick answers to questions ranging from history to physics, Quiz Team aspirants spent after school hours practicing with a "buzz board." Under the guidance of Mr. George Feldman, the scholars competed with Tech High School on the televised "Exercise in Knowledge."

Aspiring actors gain experience in plays,

Back stage preliminaries for a Thespian production include applying make-up to girls and boys alike, transforming students into characters of the play. Senior Ron Shaw gets the 'treatment' of grease paint, eyeshadow, and lipstick before appearing on stage.

•Supplying costumes for a play means weeks of preparation for senior Susan Parsons who took on the job of costume chairman.

•Traveling to a television station for a performance, repertory members act out the short play 'Blithe Spirit' by Noel Coward.

earn points in Thespians

Starring behind the scenes to add that special touch to the stage, and performing before the demanding audiences, the National Thespian Society worked five days a week to provide entertainment for students.

Under the direction of sponsor Mrs. Daveda Wyatt and president Russ Kennedy, apprentice Thespians earned points to gain membership by taking part in school productions and aiding the backstage crew with lights, costumes, and makeup.

The first year for the new Repertory Group was a successful one as they traveled to grade schools and group luncheons to present one act plays.

Other activities included movie parties and a trip to a television station.

A loud, brilliant fanfare of trumpets and the rhythm of the drum corps brought the Marching Knights of Arlington High School onto the field and into a formation of a Knight's shield.

Lively songs and marches kept band members "on their toes." The Veteran's Day Parade, the "500" Parade, and the opening of a local theater highlighted the band's activities.

A trip to Purdue University was a first for the band as they traveled to West Lafayette to take part in a half-time show featuring high school bands from all over the state.

Flag twirlers, majorettes, and pennant members sparkled in new black sequin outfits, and band members in their new uniforms added to the color and liveliness of the routines.

to concerts, fall musical

Perfecting musical talents with long hours of practice, Orchestra members gained recognition at Arlington and other local stages. Home concerts given with skill by the musicians included a Christmas Concert, background music for "My Fair Lady" and a March concert featuring student soloists. Concerts at Eastgate, elementary schools, and a judged performance in State Contest bringing them a first division, took the group away from the school to gain wider experience in performing.

A select group from the Orchestra, the String Ensemble, gave all string presentations for the Regional Conference of American Strings at North Central and for the Teacher's Association, adding to the achievements of Orchestra during the school year.

Focusing their attention on achieving perfection in their music, string members of the orchestra use their talent during practice time to prepare for the spring concert.

gives music 'Knight beat'

Blending the sounds of brass, woodwind, and percussion, Concert Band members created the Knight Beat in classical, contemporary, and pop tunes.

Urbie Green, often called the Doc Severenson of the trombone, stepped up the beat with lively renditions of "Sunny" and "Green Bee" at his fall solo appearance at the Pops Concert. Adding glamour and vocal talent, Kit Field, Miss Indiana, emceed the musical performance.

Opus 8 trumpet soloist Bud Brisbois, a high note artist who plays with Henry Mancini, brought a Latin flavor to the Arlington stage. Mr. Nilo Hovey guest conducted the spring concert.

Entering class A at contest, the band was judged on their skills.

give musical productions

Seventy-six vocalists combined their Concert Choir Talents to bring Arlington and the surrounding community the perfected sound of music that was a Knight distinction. Religious, folk-rock, and contemporary pieces enlivened their performances.

"My Fair Lady" gave individual members the chance to master their cockney accents and use their abilities in solos and chorus parts. Caroling downtown, the singers echoed the "rum-pum" of "The Little Drummer Boy" from the dome of the State Capitol at Christmas time.

Providing school and community concerts, 16 "Arlingtones" joined efforts with the Tech High School Melodaires to present an authentic Madrigal Feast.

Adding a lively touch to the Arlington "sound of music," members of Treble-aires performed at the Christmas concert and "decked the halls" with carols on the day before vacation. The all-girl chorus was chosen on individual vocal ability. The group of 60 soprano and alto musicians aimed for "concert quality."

The counterpart of Treble-aires, Boys' Ensemble, also sang in the Christmas Concert. With 32 tenors and basses already part of the choir, 12 more boys were added to the performing group the second semester. The musical Knights were selected from advanced glee clubs for their musical talents.

Counting out enough Lancers for their homerooms, Lancer Representatives stop in the publication office each Friday to pick up the weekly papers.

Accolades

Helping office administrators and deans, office messengers dutifully delivered well-known "green invitations." Each messenger spent one period daily distributing the call slips, alphabetizing, looking up schedules, putting messages in teachers' boxes, and answering the telephone.

In addition to regular duties, eighth period messengers delivered daily absence lists to all teachers. As a special assignment, first period messengers showed new students around the school.

When not busy with other tasks, the messengers used the period as a study hall.

LANCER representatives' duties included delivering weekly newspapers to students in homerooms, while aiding the yearbook staff, ACCOLADE representatives sold books in the fall and helped with the delivery when the books arrived.

Taking time out from their regular studies, students became "secretaries" as they worked in various educational departments helping teachers to prepare class materials. The one-period job of Academic Assistants included such tasks as typing and mimeographing tests, letters, and notes, and filing materials.

In an effort to put to use their acquired skills, Physical Education Assistants helped pupils with gymnastics and tumbling, demonstrated techniques, kept records and attendance, and ran errands. The assistants were chosen on the ability of leadership, initiative, dependability, honesty, and a thorough knowledge of the basic gymnastic skills.

donate time to patients

Combining friendship and a desire to help others, Red Cross Club, Tri-Hi-Y members and Clinic Assistants contributed to the school and community with their services and special projects.

Under the direction of sponsor Mrs. Gladysmae Good and president Becky Salter, Red Cross Club members prepared party boxes and sent Christmas cards to Viet Nam.

Searching for answers concerning questions about the likes and dislikes in girl-boy relationships, Tri-Hi-Y sponsored a "senior boys' discussion panel." Guided by sponsor Miss Clara Weaver and president Kathy Routt, the girls took part in the Model United Nations.

Clinic Assistants gained experience in their field of interest as they aided nurses Mrs. Rowena Graub and Mrs. Diane Flora. Donating free time during the day, the girls handled responsibilities ranging from taking temperatures to keeping records straight.

Technicians, A-V assistants form school

Putting time and effort into creating scenery for a play, juniors David Martin and Steve Fralish use craftsmenship skills they learned as auditorium technicians.

'backbone'

While casts spent hours rehearsing for plays and costume and scenery committees assembled props, auditorium technicians spent their time preparing spot light cues and backdrop operations.

Under the direction of sponsor Bernard Heeke, the seventeen-member crew coordinated efforts to synchronize sound, lighting, and curtain calls. Special effects were also handled by the men behind the scenes.

Handling'the audio-visual details for each classroom, A-V assistants scheduled projector assignments, ordered films, and prepared transparencies for the overhead projectors. The plastic overlays aided math and biology teachers. Sponsor Irvin Cash supervised the assistants' work.

Relating history to the present, members of Latin Club, Bible Club and Knights of History focused on grasping past and present philosophies.

Bible Club was introduced this year under the guidance of sponsor John Allen. The group enjoyed benefit projects such as Christmas caroling for elderly people.

Honored as the outstanding historical club in Indiana for three years, the Knights of History spent their time conducting tours of the city and handling school concession stands.

Greece and Rome came alive as Latin Club members related past and present languages. Sponsored by George Feldman, the group participated in the International Banquet and the Honors Abroad Program.

in cultures, traditions

The languages of today are as varied as the societies to which they belong, and to acquaint students with this cultural dimension, German Club members explored the diverse aspects of German customs. To increase this knowledge, members viewed films, slides, and published a paper, "Der Ritter." Other activities included a visit to the Stockholm House and a German Supper.

Films, tapes, and slides helped supplement class studies for members of the French Club as they examined French customs. Guest speakers for the club included native Frenchmen and foreign exchange students.

With the idea of promoting an interest in culture and language, the Spanish Club made use of panel discussions, slides and games. The group also attended the play, "Man of La Mancha," in addition to preparing a complete Spanish din-

for school, community

Identified by a block "A," Arlington lettermen sponsored athletic oriented activities within the school.

Together with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, The Letterman's Club sponsored the second annual Athletic Day. After a full day's activities which included dancing, volleyball, ping-pong, and basketball, Knight athletes enjoyed a free dinner of hot dogs and baked beans.

During the Christmas season, club members collected various canned goods and contributed them to a needy family.

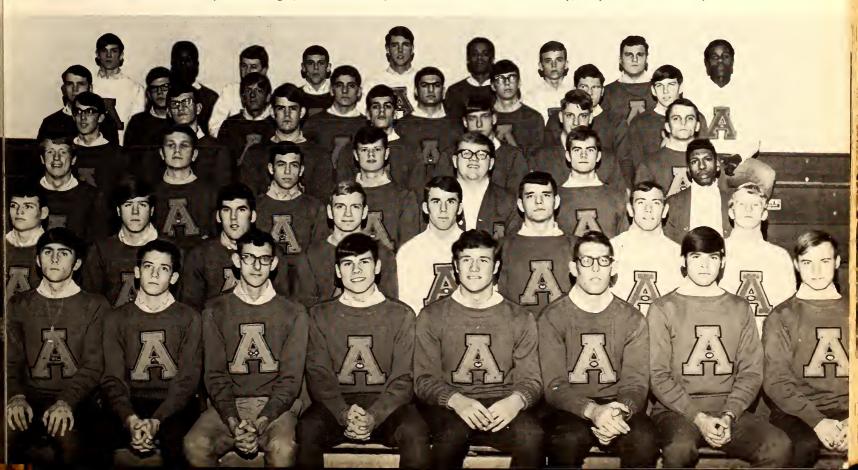

The athletic honorary, under sponsor coach Bill Kuntz, was headed by Bob Meara, president; Kurt Kleinhelter, vice-president; Greg Wolf, secretary; and David Milam, treasurer.

"Go, Go, Go, . . ." scream Knight letter winners as they become the support for the team and the hoop in hopes of a basketball victory. Members of the Letterman's Club formed cheerblocks at football and basketball games to boost the Arlington spirit.

to victories in city area

Coach Bill Bennett's varsity cross country team, paced by three returning lettermen, John Berry, Chris Coy, and Gary Ramage, managed several surprises as the season progressed.

Varsity runners placed high in major invitationals in the city area. The harriers gained a third in the Northwest meet, fourths in the Broad Ripple and Scecina meets, a fifth in the Howe meet, sixths in the Pike and city meets, and a ninth place in the sectional.

A satisfying victory over neighbor Marshall by a convincing 23—47 score topped a rewarding season.

Persistently striving for the magical 10:00 mark for the two-mile run, varsity harriers Chris Coy, Dane Philips, and Gary Ramage consistently crossed the finish line ahead of their opponents. Dane and Gary will strive to take over the leadership of next year's squad.

6—4 season

Predicted to win only one game, the varsity football team, led by first year head coach Bill Kuntz, surprised even the experts by posting a 6—4 record.

In a year highlighted by a victory over state ranked Carmel by a 13—0 score, the gridders boasted wins over Lawrence, Northwest, Warren, Manual, and Crispus Attucks.

Individual records sparked Knight victories. Senior Bob Meara led all city runners in rushing by gaining 1500 yards. Bob was honored at season's end by being named to the first team all-city.

A defensive squad that held opponents to 15.7 points per game was led by stalwarts Brad Davis, Veo McGee, Doug Harmas, Kurt Kleinhelter, and Glenn Moses.

The high-powered offense was geared by Tom Meara, Bob Riley, Emil Molin, Mark McAlister, Mark Nelson, and Rob McCoy, who kicked 14 extra points plus the city's only field goal.

best in state

A senior-led wrestling team, under Head Coach Jim Ellis, fought to a successful 11—1 season plus a city title, North Central Invitational title, and a third place finish in the state.

Seniors Bill Willetts and Dave Milam each fought to undefeated 27—0 seasons and state championships. Bill garnered his second state title with a 7—4 decision over Ron Howard of Logansport. Dave copped the 175-pound crown with a 6—3 victory over Jerry Hocking of Crawfordsville in the final match.

Hopes for an undefeated season were upset by Warren Central as the Warriors gained a 23—22 win over the matmen for their only setback.

The varsity grapplers ran off with the city and North Central Invitational titles as the Knights gained two firsts and five seconds in the city and six firsts and one second at North Central to gain their first Invitational crown.

city trophies

The reserve wrestling team, led by head coach Elmer Callaway, won their fourth city title in five years and boasted a 10—1—1 season record.

Shortridge fell to the squad by a 34—20 count in the opening meet. In the next meet, Carmel accounted for the team's only loss by one point, 26—25. The reserve matmen also owned victories over city powers Scecina and Tech and county toughie Warren Central. In the final encounter of the season, the grapplers scrambled to a draw with North Central.

The squad boasted two individual champions in the city meet: freshman Doug Molin, 127-pound; and Criss Horton, 133-pound. Four individuals placed second; Kyle Gillette, Jerry Davis, Dave LeMaster, and Jeff Krienik.

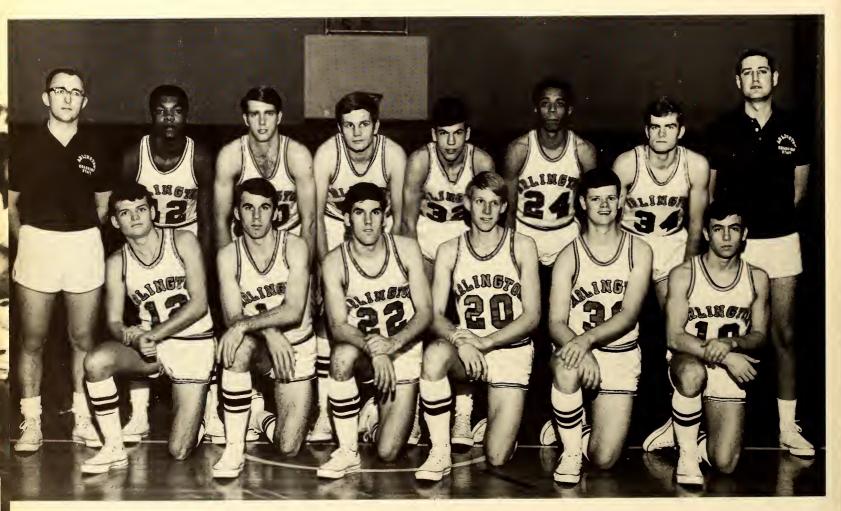

After a disappointing 2—8 season under Head Coach John Manka, the freshman wrestlers fought to a commendable third place finish in the city with one individual champion, Dave Henthorn in the 133-pound weight division.

Finding themselves in a familiar position at the beginning of the half, varsity roundballers try to close the thirteen point gap by gaining possession of the ball.

to 4—17 slate

With hopes for a successful season resting on the shoulders of five returning lettermen, the varsity roundballers, under first year Head Coach Don Lostutter, fell to the wayside and managed only four victories for the year.

After losing the first three games of the season, things started looking up as the squad scrambled to three straight wins over Wood, Scecina, and Lawrence Central. This proved to be the only bright spot of the season as the hoop men could only edge Beech Grove before the city tournament as their final win.

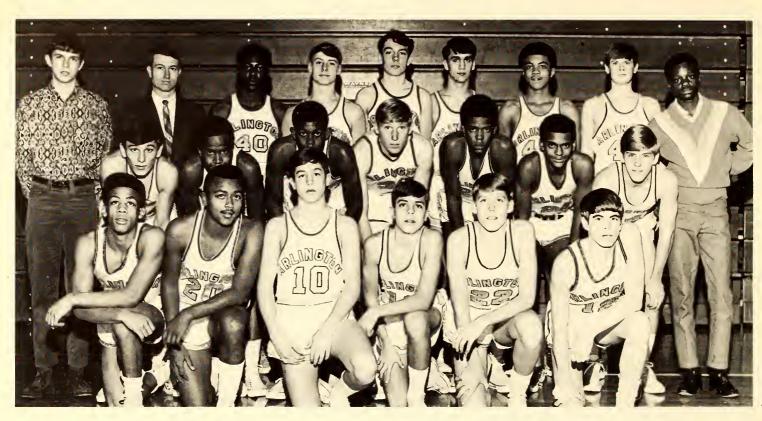

The offensive scoring attack was led by junior forward Mike Glancy with a near 20 pt. average. Senior forward Chris Reeder added a 16 pt. scoring average to bolster the Knight attack.

Amidst the tangle of legs, senior member Bob Meara grapples for the ball.

reserves get to 8-11 mark

Working for future varsity spots, members of the reserve and freshman basketball teams earned 8—11 and 18—3 marks, respectively.

Under the direction of Coach Rollin Cutter, the reserve hoop men won six of their first ten games. Wood, Scecina, Lawrence, Northwest, Greenfield, and Beech Grove fell to the Knights during the first half of the season. The reserves could only scramble to win over Broad Ripple and Pike in the final nine games.

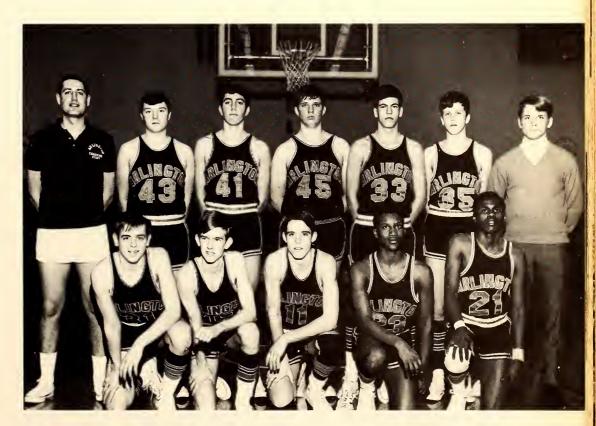

The freshman ball club earned a victory slate by winning 18 of 21 games. Coach John Allen's frosh went undefeated through the season's first ten games. The squad then lost three of the next five encounters. Cathedral accounted for two of the defeats, and rival Howe squeezed by for the team's only other loss.

to winning 14—5 season

Bolstered by four members of the all-city squad, the varsity baseball team slugged their way to a 14—5 winning slate.

An offensive scoring attack that averaged five runs per game was led by city athlete of the year Scott Tegarden, all-city third baseman Bill Baugh, catcher Lance "Rocky" Rhodes, and outfielders Steve Baker and Bob Meara. All-city ace Mike Whitaker and two-year veteran Frank Brown headed the Knight hurlers.

Hopes for a third successive winning season under first year head coach Don Shambaugh rested on the shoulders of veteran Bob Meara, second-sacker Jim Seamon, catcher Mike Seamon, and pitcher Mike Glancy. In their first encounter, the team split a doubleheader with state runner-up South Bend Clay.

Striking out one of the North Central opponents, Senior Glenn Moses throws the perfect pitch to catcher Mike Seamon in the North Central VS Arlington contest.

Track team faces rebuilding year; Milam

third in state

Straining to reach the magical sixty-foot barrier, senior shot-putter Dave Milam exhibits the form that carried him to a third place finish in the state meet.

A lack of varsity experience in the sprints and field events proved to be a major factor in the cinderman's hopes for a successful season.

Coach Bill Bennett's squad was bolstered by the performance of shot-putter Dave Milam, who finished third in last year's state meet, as he worked to reach the sixty foot barrier.

The track team again proved strong in the mile and two-mile runs and saw varsity runners Chris Coy, Gary Ramage, and Dane Phillips lead city distance men continually to the finish line.

Sprinters Herb Henry and Rob McCoy were aided by the early season find of underclassman Bill Barnett. The speedster was the only victorious Knight against North Central in the squad's first encounter as he flashed to a hundred-yard win.

Gasping for air on the last lap, Knight John Berry heads for the finish line.

The varsity golf and tennis teams, each led by experienced three-year veterans, entered the spring season with high expectations for winning records.

The golf squad, under head coach John Manka, began practice in early March in preparation for a three-way meet with Scecina and Ritter, March 27. The linksters were bolstered by three-year letter winner Joe Paulin. Considered strong contenders for a city title, the team was also aided by the experience of returners Paul Troy, Russ Palma, and Rick Lee.

Previous city champion Greg Wolf headed an inexperienced tennis team into the spring season. Coach Lyman Combs's raquetmen based their success on the play of three-year ace Greg Wolf and that of underclass hopefuls. The squad's rebuilding season began with indoor practice in early March, then took to the courts two weeks later.

gymnastics, 'basket'ball

Proving that it's not always a man's world, the Girls' Athletic Association gave sports-minded girls an opportunity to compete among themselves.

Under the direction of Mrs. Jane Pollock, G.A.A. offered such varied activities as intramural basketball and gymnastics in the winter and volleyball and tennis in the spring season.

Members of the gymnastics team, chosen in the fall in an all-school tryout, practiced twice a week in preparation for the state meet March 22, at Ball State University. Nancy Scherer, Cindy Neil, Cathy Clark, Pat Stutsman, and JoAnn Arbuckle all qualified for state-wide competition. The girls also raised money for the Girls' Athletic Association by performing in an intrasquad meet and charging 50 cents admission for attendance.

Ned Primer's Stars reign in intramurals;

Counting points are Bowling League officers Lynn Richeson, president; Miles Matthews, treasurer; Judy Mikosz, secretary of League 2; and Janet Byers, secretary of League 1.

bowlers gain 90 members

Giving Knights a chance to participate in organized competition, intramural basketball and bowling provided an after-school outlet for athletic-minded teens.

Intramural teams took over the gym twice each week as the froshsophomore teams played on Monday, and the junior-senior squads battled on Wednesday. Ned Primer's All-Stars emerged as champs by avenging an early season loss to the Zeros and defeating them by a 68—46 count in the final game.

The Bowling League, sponsored by Mrs. Susan Gooch, boasted 90 members. Because of a high number of enthusiasts, Knights "split" into two leagues, as they travelled to Hindel Lanes each Tuesday. Jan Byers and Judy Mikosz gained high averages for the girls, and Doug Terry and Tom Byers topped the boys. League president Lynn Richeson organized the activities.

Swing it, baby . . . Senior "Golden-Hairs" (above) show the faculty and students that girls are not the only shapely figures capable of drawing a big round of applause.
Hidden faculty talent is discovered as Mercedes Portilla, Josie Hudson, Diane Flora, Ferne

hoop contest

Ten-point baskets, technical fouls on cheerleaders, "Golden-Hairs," and the beat of bongo drums marked the head-on clash of the "Fearless Faculty" and the senior boys.

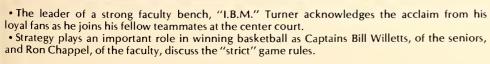

Challenged by the Class of 1969, the 3R'ed faculty met the opposition in a 24 minute "battle of the generations" on the basketball court.

Coached by Athletic Director Charles Maas, the teachers boasted such "stars" as "Hot Rod" Allen, "Slammin' Sammy" Shambaugh, "Buzz-Saw" Blaze, "Hurricane" Hutson, "Long Shot" Lostutter, "Mudcat" Murphy, and "1.B.M." Turner.

Although the senior boys went down to defeat, 46—35, they retained their status by presenting half-time entertainment, featuring the "Golden-Hairs." "Twirlers" Jim Lane and Craig Winn earned the spotlight during the performance.

A jump-ball proves a strain on faculty's "Hard-Hearted" Hannah and "Hot Rod" Allen.

Coaches add knowledge and experience

Coach Roland Cutter finds that communication with team members and referees is an important asset to winning a game. The boys must also be alert to sudden decisions made by the coach, while they try to master basic teamwork.

Lining up a close shot, head golf coach John Manka gives a putter a few pointers on how to improve his swing.

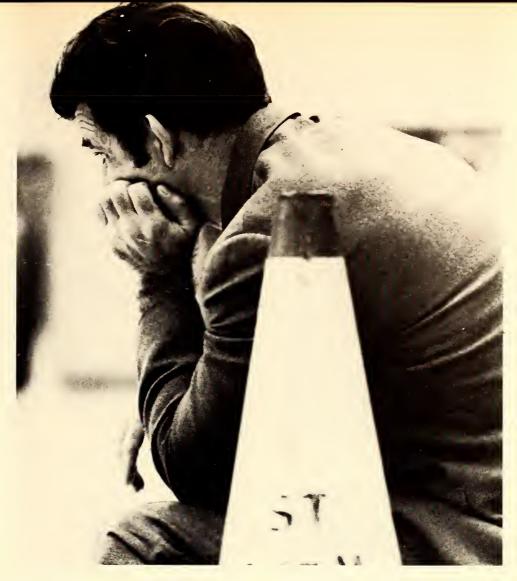

Fire up big team! . . . Coach Bill Kuntz urges his boys to display their best performance on the football field. His enthusiasm inspired the team to six victories.

for winning combination

Arlington coaches, the driving force behind the Knight athlete, found the victory formula as sport success marked 1968-69.

Three new head coaches took varsity reigns this year. Bill Kuntz sparked the gridders to a winning 6—4 season record after a year's coaching layoff as dean of boys. Don Lostutter took over the head basketball post vacated by Tom Dobbs who went to Ball State. Don Shambaugh left neighbor Howe to head up this year's baseball team. Coach Shambaugh also led the freshman gridders to a 7—1—1 season slate.

Veteran coaches Bill Bennett, Lyman Combs, Jim Ellis, and John Manka continued building top teams. Coaches Bennett and Ellis each had successful winning seasons. Golfers, headed by John Manka, and coach Combs' tennis squad began their seasons with high hopes for city titles.

Giving full attention and moral support to wrestlers, Coach Jim Ellis intently watches the outcome of a close match during City Tourney competition.

In tense moments of the Carmel game, Coach Don Lostutter ponders over the best defensive techniques to use. Mr. Lostutter was promoted as head coach for basketball this year.

Cheerleaders' support gives squads that

Cold but happy, varsity cheerleader Meg Woods does what she does best, leading the cheers for her favorite football team.

Knowing how the team feels too, yell leader Sherry Newhouse shows her concern over the tense game.

spirit boost

"Groovy, groovy, groovy . . . but they can't beat us." Cries of anticipation and bursts of anxiety for striving athletes summed up the emotions of a spirited group of cheerleaders. Tokens of enthusiasm, candy treats and locker room decorations, provided a spark to inspire the boys immediately before each game.

In sequence with the explosive school spirit, pep sessions provided an outlet for student energy and enthusiasm. Displaying their school pride were 406 cheerblock members who wore "AHS" sweaters and designed a variety of catch phrases within their newly added card section to boost the striving team on to victory.

"Go, Go, Go, Go, . . ." screams reserve cheerleader Nancy Meek as she awaits the team's appearance on the gridiron.

The leaders of a spirit-minded student body, the varsity cheerleaders are (FRONT ROW) Meg Woods, Pat Stutsman, (BACK ROW) Cindy Neil, Sherry Newhouse, captain Candy Belden, Laura Woods, and Karen Jeffries. The girls were chosen by fellow students.

The freshman cheerleaders are Pam Jordan, Sharon Kelly, Pam Jessup, Sandy Rhodes, and JoAnne Arbuckle. The "Greenie" yell squad was selected by members of the boistrous class of 1972 in a hard fought election at the start of the school year.

High stepping halftimers highlight games

Happiness is a halftime performance for senior Goldenaire Debbie Campbell.

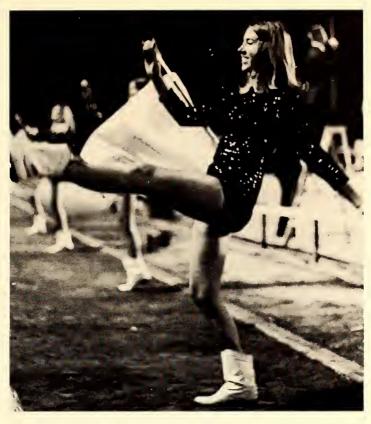

Little Goldenaire mascot Lisa Skinner tries to find out what surprises Santa Claus, played by Mr. William Fellows, has in store for her on Christmas morning.

with routines

Marching to the rhythm of highstepping tunes, the 64-member Goldenaire unit again added sparkling performances at basketball and football halftimes.

Under the skilled direction of Mrs. Burdeen Schmidt, the spiritminded girls practiced twice each week to give as near-perfect a show as possible. The Goldenaires braved a biting wind and freezing temperatures when they participated with the marching band in the annual Veteran's Day Parade downtown. In the fall, the squad again performed with the band at Purdue University's High School Band Day. In keeping with the yuletide spirit, the girls worked extra hard for their Christmas show, complete with Santa himself, played by Mr. William Fellows, tossing gifts of candy to the Knight crowd.

Performing at their last football halftime, senior Goldenaires, like Chris King, were featured at the Broad Ripple game.

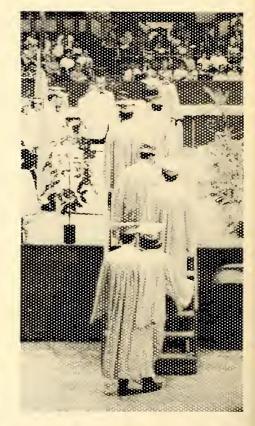

After spending Tuesday and Thursday nights perfecting difficult routines, the half-time performers put on a near-perfect show for the Knight-time audience.

Goldenaire members are mascot Lisa Skinner, (Row One) Ann Waller—co captain, Barb Hartley—captain, Lori Grana—captain, Becky Pearce—co captain (Row Two) Patty Donegan, Becky Deputy, Debbie Fitt, Elizabeth Jacovac, Cindy Clark, Beth Loveless, Bonnie Beaumont, Pam Denney, Janey Baskett, Debbie Bennet, Patty Kendall, Kathy LeFeber (Row Three) Mary Linzer, Diana Bailey, Merle Safford, Carol Hughes, Debbie Campbell, Linda Cable, Karen Kennedy, Barbara Saillant, Heidi Embach, Cindy Loomis, Debbie Wilson, Faye Grigsby, Robyn Chamness, Merry Spoostra, Cheryl Cardwell (Row Four) Donna Roberts, Memory Lawhorn, Elizabeth Kidwell, Ann Beall, Chris Carter, Nancy Atkinson, Debbie Justus, Joni Strong, Terry Drinkett, Susan Edwards, Sue Young, Peggy Klein, Debbie Felkins, Ingie Kirshner, Diane Tolliver, Karen Jessup, Patty Villars, Tisha LeMaster.

set pattern for students

Keeping 2,800 students on the right track was a royal feat for the Arlington administration. This "kingsized" job included guiding and counseling students, discussing problems with parents, and keeping schedules in order.

Absorbing the impact of the 1969 Knight beat, Principal Ralph Clevenger mastered the art of solving problems that faced individuals and the school.

In matching the rapid tempo of the year, Vice-principal Robert Turner drummed out 2,800 schedules each semester while Vice-principal Robert Gwyn coordinated school clubs and scheduled buses.

Deans Belgen Wells and Harry Caskey helped preserve cadence in student life by counseling students.

Mr. Daniel Welch aided collegebound seniors by keeping them informed on college requirements and test dates.

Dean of Boys Mr. Harry Caskey tries to solve the problems of male Knights, as he counsels Lawrence Palmer on the reason for his call slip.

After a European tour for better world understanding, Mrs. Belgen Wells and JoAnne Bryan discuss their summer with nation-wide Student Council representatives.

Cooks, custodians make 'all systems go;'

Preparing a meal for hungry Knights, Mrs. Toni Harrel stirs a kettle of chili.

Engineer Maurice Hoop performs his job, checking a maze of pipes and dials in order to insure safety and smooth running of equipment for Arlingtonites.

guards cover 'night beat'

Throughout the day, 34 cooks kept a steady flow of hot food coming for hundreds of students and teachers. Mrs. Marjorie Massingale commanded the cooks who arrived at 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday to meet the hunger needs of 2,800 Knights. Baking, broiling and boiling, the cooks served nutritious lunches featuring a variety of food.

A squad of custodians and matrons spent hours keeping the school free from litter. Mr. Thomas Land headed the group who washed boards and swept floors.

Two engineers ruled the catacombs of the school making sure "all systems were go." Keeping with their own "night beat," the watchmen kept a round-the-clock vigil of school security—safety chains and locks.

Senioritis struck More teens Than the Hong Kong flu. Class unity developed As enthusiasm grew For dress-up days And caravans. But underclass hours Dared to appear On senior schedules Creating a mass exodus to Ripple's "Knight" school. Harmony sounded From wastebaskets And spoons When senior boys made Their talent show debut. Actors jeopardized grades As seniors shed Pseudo-sophistication To recreate Tom Jones' England. Navy blue and gold Symbolized status, While calendars signified A countdown of days and a Sea of gold motarboards.

From greenies to graduates:

Seniors sock it to 'em . . . Senior cheerleader Bill Willettes wears his "pride" as senior powder-bowl coach Mr. Jim Ellis briefs him in some spirited cheers.

Senior Surprize . . . Senior boys surprize their audience with a "musical" skit as well as "Tiny Tim Rusthoven" with a "shaving cream pie" in the face.

a 4-year orbit of fellowship

Hey Baby, that's status . . . Seniors zeroed in on a blue and gold form of distinguishing themselves from the underclassmen—a ribbon to be worn Fridays by seniors only.

Representing their class in the talent show, senior girls paint their sign.

Forming their first "official" cheerblock, the Class of '69 flies their banner.

Echoing his choice, senior Russ Kennedy accentuates the beat of mock elections.

Senior maturity includes experiencing all aspects of approaching adulthood.

'Knight' life over, seniors 'beat' new paths,

set new aims

The road to maturity
Is growing shorter—
Aspects of college, careers
Loom in our future.
High school is in the past
But forever remains
"The joys that were ours."

Senior sponsor Everett Green points out test dates to Bill Hixon and Debbie Lake.

Walking and remembering . . . Ann Waller reflects the four year road to graduation.

Juniors push for 'seniority' positions,

"Don't be shy", Junior Andy McDaniels teases junior Valerie Smith as both display talent in the annual Talent Show.

trigger spirit through yells

As the Class of '70 joined the ranks of upperclassmen, spirited juniors set new traditions.

Juniors led all classes academically, and dominated by 41 per cent, the Court of Honor. They studied the properties of matter in chemistry, interpreted the Constitution in U.S. History classes, and tackled the theories of advanced mathematics. College counseling began for students interested in pursuing specialized careers.

Junior girls donned black and gold jerseys and challenged the senior girls to the first annual "powder bowl." Maintaining their reputation as "the most spirited class," juniors played an active part in supporting their school.

The junior prom highlighted the year as the class of '70 anticipated next year's senior status.

"Knights have got the power," "Sock it to 'em Knights," and "Knights can't be beat" are chants familiar to an enthusiastic junior class. Their floats revealed many hours of toil and dedication for the Homecoming festivities.

Beanies burned, sophomores challenge

Hand in air, Sophomore Bruce Hubbard shouts "Here come da judge" as he joins the marching band for an evening performance at the final football game of the season.

upperclass distinctions

Cries of "yell it out sophomores" filled the gym as second year Knights distinguished themselves from the frosh.

Involvement in school activities showed sophomore eagerness to achieve. Featured at basketball games, Don Jones displayed his ability and talent in gymnastics. Sophomore athletes bolstered reserve teams in preparation for varsity squads.

Dissecting worms and frogs, sophomores discovered that a way to observe living organisms was through biology. Varying their mathematical skills, sophomores enrolled in geometry class as a preparation for college.

With the close of the second year, members of the Class of '71 received their class rings and began the wait for "upperclassmanship."

Frosh receive warm welcome, initiation,

With an eye of respect . . . freshman Richard Klippel looks up to senior Mark Hoecker, this year's drum major, in hope that he may gain that coveted position someday.

prove ability to superiors

Emerging from a child's world of grade school activities, 859 freshmen enrolled in Arlington, frightened but enthusiastic. The Class of '72 fit into the "Knight" life by participating in clubs and sports.

They experienced the typical frustrations of all Frosh classes: getting lost in the halls, being late for classes, and approaching their desks from the wrong side.

Cheerblock for the girls and freshmen sports for the boys helped to promote school spirit.

Homecoming proved to be a thrill never before felt by the Class of '72. Coming out from behind the scenes, they showed their school loyalty by showing up the other three classes and placing first in the annual float contest.

Fighting for a rebound, freshmen Dave Oliver and Gerald Towns out-jump a Tech Titan.

Pulse of youth fluctuates with frustrations,

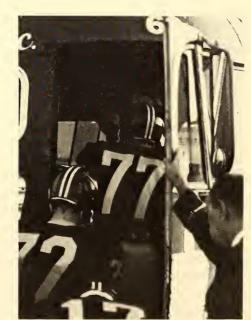

The laughter of youth . . . Daily classes are broken by a chat in the hall.

Knight gridders board the bus silently for an away game as they "think football."

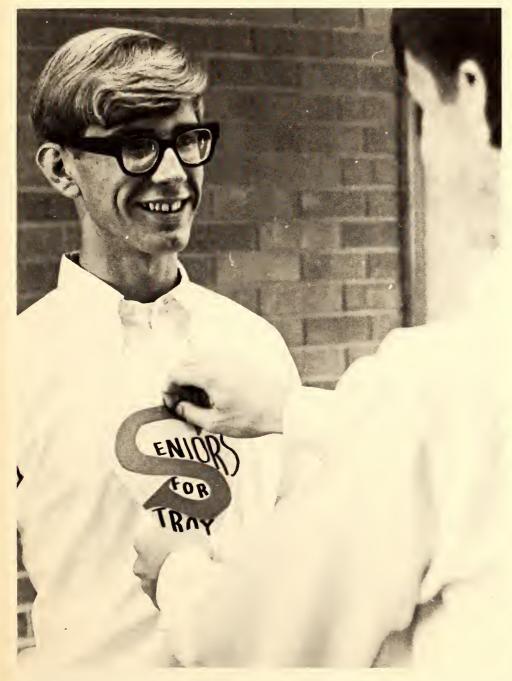

School doesn't end after ninth period for senior Dave Schwantes. Many late hours are spent on extra-curricular activities such as the debate arguments he is working on.

Barefootin' . . . Senior Meg Woods shows Jim Lane how to "keep cool" after a long day.

anxieties, accomplishments

"Helen's for Troy—are you?"... Senior Paul Troy urges fellow classmate Rob Partenheimer to vote for the right man in a close race for class president.

People— The youth of today— Create a rhythm Unique in a world Of frustration and fun. It sounds As a "teen tempo." The uninhibited laughter Echoing in the halls, The frenzied pounding On cafeteria tables, The pulsating beat Of the "Supremes," The muffled sobs As a ring is returned. But this beat Does not end when "Pomp and Circumstance" Sounds at graduation— This beat goes on . . .

A talent show act personifies the path that the freshmen seek for identity.

Proud grads sign the alma-mater register at the annual senior alumni dance.

From greenie to graduate,

- Sophomores (above) are part of today's teen-tempo as they "do their own thing."
  Students rely on faculty members (left)
- for more than academic assistance.
- Seniors cross the finish line (right) as juniors continue the seniority race.

Knight life's hard to 'beat'

This tempo— A distinctive rhythm Within the KNIGHT BEAT Pulsates within The "outside world" As seniors Take a final step Into its vast realm No longer protected By parents; authorities. Juniors rise On the ladder Armed with experience Gained In two year's learning. Sophomores Achieve recognition As they become Familiarized With high school life. Freshmen take "Giant steps" As they Begin specialization For the future. The never-ending pulse That exists within Arlington teens Shapes the future— The individual himself. For this pulse, This rhythm Is the KNIGHT BEAT.

As graduation becomes a reality, seniors turn the Knight Beat into the Alum-Beat.

In step With the tempo Of the times, Teen consumers Become a part Of the buying public. A cash register clicks As money is exchanged For products, A telephone rings As an order is placed, A pen scratches As a signature Authenticates a check, A "thank you" spoken After a transaction Completes a "deal." The fast tempo Of teen-buying trends Is recognized By advertisers, For the business world Sounds within The KNIGHT BEAT.

Students and faculty celebrate Principal Ralph Clevenger's "thirty-ninth" birthday with cards and a chorus of "Happy Birthday."

Graduates 'exit;' underclassmen continue

At 3:15, the Knight tempo intensifies, as teen voices merge in the corridors.

Spring fever effects teens with its symptoms of weariness and boredom, as the air becomes warmer and thoughts change to anticipation of the upcoming vacations.

Knight Beat

Listen to the beat Sounding in the halls -As the sandeled feet Of sunburned teens Hurry to summer classes. June graduates Enter the business world Or experience a new Academic environment. Underclassmen enjoy A short recess From high school life As swimming parties Preempt studies. The KNIGHT BEAT Continues its steady pace, A permanent part Of all who are Arlington.

The final bell of the semester marks only a short pause in the KNIGHT BEAT, as the pulsating rhythm of teen life resounds again in the halls in summer school.

The KNIGHT BEAT
The rhythmic pulse
Of AHS students
Vibrantly sounds
As yesterday's future
Becomes today—
Listen...

the beat goes on . . .
